Bois d'Arc Preserve Project Is on the Move

On Thursday, August 29, when the editor made this photograph, the dragline and bulldozer crew who are throwing up the levee which will create the Bois d'Arc highway preserve were within two miles of the northern end of this wildlife preserve.

The camera is looking south down the ditch line, with the newly-erected levee to the right. The machinery on August 29 was two miles from the northern end of the preserve, and it is another 1.7 miles to U. S. 67, a total of 3.7 miles to pavement — and then eight miles to the west line of Hope.

The editor went down to the scene with Odus Harvey of Hope. Conversation with B. J. Bratcher, operator of the dragline, and Garland Kidd, who runs the bulldozer, disclosed that they averaged about 400 feet a day on the levee-building job when the top was 6 feet — and are now doing between 250 and 300 feet as the levee, approaching Bois d'Arc creek bridge, rises to 7 feet 1 inch.

Equipment and crew belong to the Arkansas Game & Fish Commission. The Bois d'Arc project comprises about 6,000 acres at present, with additional land anticipated, and there is a chance the preserve may impound some water before winter. But there has been no official statement on this.

Tot Falls Into Well, Rescued

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (AP) — A 22-month-old girl was rescued unharmed yesterday after she had tumbled into a partly dug water well at her home near Emerson, Ark.

The meeting of the Western delegates took place a few hours before the subcommittee was due to hold its first meeting since last Thursday.

The five-power Disarmament subcommittee, which resumed its London sessions March 18, has moved down in an East-West split over the banning of nuclear weapons tests, a halt in production of such weapons and inspections to force any agreement.

The impasse was pointed up in a letter made public today, from Prime Minister Macmillan to Soviet Premier Bulganin urging some real progress in the disarmament talks.

Macmillan went over the head of Valerian Zorin, Soviet delegate to the subcommittee, to call for favorable consideration of Western proposals. He said the West was not encouraged by Zorin's recent rejection of the plan put forward by the United States, Canada, France and Britain, the Western nations on the subcommittee.

However, Louis J. Glickman, however, has seriously set out to erect a vermillion-colored sky-scraper in the heart of Manhattan. His proposal to tear down historic Carnegie Hall, which he bought for five million dollars, and replace it with a bright red 44-story, 24 million dollar office building has caught the public fancy.

People want to know who Glickman is, and why he wants to put up a tower that will look like an oversized Bloody Mary.

"Oh, I just happened to be wearing a red tie the day I closed the deal," Glickman jokes casually.

This Man Will Actually 'Paint the Town Red'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every American can has had at one time or another, a weekend ambition to paint the town red.

No body but Louis J. Glickman, however, has seriously set out to erect a vermillion-colored sky-scraper in the heart of Manhattan. His proposal to tear down his historic Carnegie Hall, which he bought for five million dollars, and replace it with a bright red 44-story, 24 million dollar office building has caught the public fancy.

The venture is typical of Glickman, whose formula for success is "imagination mixed with prudent daring."

Glickman, one of the nation's leading real estate syndicate operators, wasn't born with a silver spoon in his mouth — it was a properly deed. Shortly after graduating from College he became a partner of his father, Pitney at each of the numerous entrances.

The crowd stood quietly most of the time. A National Guard lieutenant colonel told the boy with the flag not to display it again. However, he brought the flag out again a few minutes later and there was another burst of applause.

Some 500 white students were in the building about 30 minutes before classes were scheduled to start and the crowd thinned down considerably.

Major Gen. Sherman T. Clinger, Arkansas adjutant general, arrived on the scene a few minutes before the start of classes and said that he was pleased to see the crowd so orderly. He estimated the number of guardsmen at 250. He added that he would report to Faubus later today.

their public schools—Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Virginia. In Virginia is one of the five school districts against which the original integration ruling was directed.

Federal courts have ordered five of Virginia's 128 school districts to integrate, and a break in that state's racial barriers may come during the year.

The wide stretches of Texas offer a contrast. Eastward, the big cities of Houston, Fort Worth and Dallas continue to maintain segregated schools; in the west and south, schools are fully or partly integrated. In San Antonio, integration began three years ago.

Elsewhere in the South, and along the South's borders, varying speeds mark the progress being made toward integration. Except in such border states as Kentucky, Missouri, Maryland, Oklahoma, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, the total number of Negroes admitted to formerly all-white schools remains small.

In the case of North Carolina, the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People contends that the admission of only a few Negroes to white schools is simply a ruse to sidestep the decrees of the Supreme Court while seeming to abide by them.

Asks Russia to Make Move to Disarm

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower today challenged Russia to make the next move toward an East-West disarmament agreement.

The President, speaking at his news conference, took a pessimistic view of any early break in the disarmament deadlock.

He said he does not now see any further constructive step the United States and its Allies can make on disarmament at this time.

Something, he said, must happen on the other side—referring to Russia.

Eisenhower added that a Soviet policy change does not seem likely, but there could possibly be some change in the Kremlin's position which is not visible at the moment.

Disarmament negotiator Harold E. Stassen has returned to London from conferences here for a meeting of the U.N. disarmament subcommittee.

The President did not disclose whether he has given Stassen any new instructions. In this connection, the President referred to his statement on Aug. 28 after the Soviets denounced the West's disarmament plan and claimed development of long range missiles.

The President said at that time that he was deeply disappointed at Russia's "scornful words" and "boastful statements."

FOR FUN AND FUTURE—This "ride of the future" is shown here in an Akron, Ohio, amusement park, but its builders say it's more than an amusement ride. The first commercial monorail in the United States consists of three 11-foot-long cars with four double seats in each. A single overhead track 20 feet above the ground carries the monorail at speeds up to 60 m.p.h. The aluminum cars are powered by a four-cylinder engine. The five Akron residents who designed the monorail say it may be the answer to traffic problems in teeming cities. Surface traffic would be something passengers could just look down on—and relax.

CASTLE OF LOVE—There's nothing startling about castles in Hollywood. Movie companies build them by the dozens, and millionaires import them from Europe. But, this castle, which is now for sale, is unique, even for Hollywood. It is a house that love built: The love of Milton Hopkins for his wife, Josie. It took Milton eight years to convert a tired cottage into a fairybook castle, complete with 18 waterfalls, 15 pools and ponds, islands, fountains and bridges. He had promised Josie a castle and a castle is what she got. Recently, doctors told the couple, center, they must sell the dream house and move to another climate for Josie's health.

Girls Fight Against Unseen Killer

BOSTON (UP) — A 14-year-old girl today waged a grim battle against an unseen killer with her only weapon, a transplanted kidney donated by her identical twin sister.

Peter Bent Brigham Hospital surgeons maintained a round-the-clock watch over Delores Huskey, De Soto, Mo., as she fought against nephritis, a deadly kidney disease. She was reported "holding her own," but still in danger.

Delores' sister, Doris, who pleaded successfully with a Massachusetts Supreme Court judge to be allowed to donate a healthy kidney Sunday, was expected to recover without incident.

Doctors said the success of the 5½-hour surgery cannot be determined until Wednesday morning when the critical 72-hour post-operative period will have elapsed. The surgeons who performed the delicate transplant operation, Drs. Joseph E. Murray, J. Hartwell Harrison and Warren Guild have been successful in four previous cases.

Delores now has three kidneys, though both of the original organs are diseased, and have ceased to function properly. If the transplanted kidney can adjust itself to her body, the two diseased organs will be removed in later surgery.

The case was taken to the state's high court since both girls are minors and neither they nor their parents could give legal consent to an operation involving the well-being of Doris, who was not ill.

The judge cleared the legal obstacle Friday when Doris told him she "could not live with myself" if her sister died without making a last-ditch attempt to save her life.

Hopes for Any Economy Treaty Killed

By JULIUS GOLDEN

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Inter-American Economic Conference last night unanimously approved a declaration of principles formally killing any hope for an economic treaty for the Americas in the near future.

The "Declaration of Buenos Aires" was approved by all the American nations except Venezuela, which did not send a delegate to the conference. The declaration set forth 10 basic principles intended to guide the Americans in their drive toward economic betterment.

It replaced but fell far short of the proposed general economic agreement which was to have laid out an economic policy for the hemisphere. The draft agreement bogged down in controversy after two weeks of haggling and objections by the United States, Mexico, Chile, Uruguay, Peru and Paraguay.

Delegates voted to ask the Organization of American States to continue to study the proposed agreement. A combination of Resolutions approved during the 20-nation, three-week conference resulted in the declaration called for:

(1) Increase in Inter-American trade; (2) reduction of restrictions on inter-American trade; (3) international cooperation through consultation on basic product problems; (4) adoption of measures to facilitate acquisition of capital, machinery and raw materials; (5) intensification of efforts to amplify the flow of private capital to underdeveloped countries of the hemisphere; (6) continuation of efforts to achieve sound financial conditions; (7) intensification of efforts to develop and use efficiently means of transportation and communication; (8) signing of agreements to facilitate free transit for landlocked countries; (9) approval of technical cooperation programs; and (10) strengthening of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council.

Bill Could Have Passed Years Ago

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The most significant thing about the Congress just ended was that Democrats and Republicans finally stopped playing phony with Negroes and passed a civil rights bill, the first in 82 years.

Until now, promises by the two parties on civil rights were political bunk. What they did this year they could have done any time in those 82 years by teaming up to crush the opposition of Southern Democrats.

Here's an example of how they did the opposite:

In 1949, last time the Democrats made a stab at a civil rights bill, they could have kept the Senate in continuous session to try to smash the Southern filibuster which finally killed the bill, but they didn't.

And there were other pressures on Congress to act.

Southern resistance to school integration had made the nation more conscious of segregation than ever before and at a time when this country was trying to win the world away from communism.

And this year many organizations—particularly the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People put the heat on both parties in Congress and on the Eisenhower administration.

The late Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, USN, was the first man to fly over both the North and South Poles.

New Program Out to Woo Housewives

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's newest programming stunt is a double earful of work for ad lib veteran Jim McKay.

"Toughest job I ever had," he cheerfully vows, taking off the headphones. "All that gabble in one ear, all those performers in the other."

McKay is anchor man on "The Verdict Is Yours," the Columbia network's attempt to shake up the afternoon format and entice housewives away from all those soap operas.

"The Verdict" bowed in yesterday, the basic idea is to submit legal trials to viewers in unrehearsed format. From the director down, no one will know when a case begins how many days it will take, what will happen next on camera, or what the solution will be.

Actors are being used only for the parts of plaintiff and defendant. Real-life lawyers will be the attorneys, barristers or retired jurists the judges. The jurors are to be picked from the opening day studio audience.

"They will have to agree to come back daily until the case is finished," warns McKay, "and they will be paid just about what real life jurors get. We don't want to spoil them."

McKay, who is 35 and has been doing CBS news and sports programs since 1950, has the chore of putting together all the vagrant elements and providing the continuity.

The initial case concerns custody of a youngster, is expected to take about eight days on the air.

Lauren Bacall Is Making 'Our Love'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It was Lauren Bacall's first day at work since the death of Humphrey Bogart, and she was nervous.

"Nervous as I can possibly be," she confessed in her half-kidding, half-serious way. "This is the first time I've started a picture without having Bogey say, 'Good luck, baby.' It's kinda tough, you know."

The whole set knew, and everyone admired her courage. It was her first day on "Our Love" (stand by for a title change any moment), in which she stars with Robert Stack. "It's a real tear-jerker," she reported. "I did it in and get to run the gamut of my emotions — from A to B."

I watched her rehearse her first scene, in which she and Stack meet. She tossed it off with skill, later said she was aided by having worked with director John Negulesco in two previous pictures — "A Woman's World" and "How to Marry a Millionaire." Still, she had nerves.

"It's been eight months since I did 'Designing Woman,'" she remarked. "Think of all the things that have happened in that time."

"I'm glad to be going back to work. It gives me something to keep myself busy, and I need that

Stock Market
Getting Real
Hard to Guess

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Sudden wide swings in stock prices of late makes today's sluggish market one of the hardest to guess in many months as you may discover to your sorrow on surprise.

Even the non-stock buying public is confused and is trying to read portents into the stock index. Stock price drops usually alarm the public. Also the present sideward drift in business activity makes it nervous.

For most of August the stock price trend was down. But a few brisk rallies upset some of the bearish thinking.

By pushing prices down the bears have been showing their view of the course of business for the rest of the year. Since July their thinking has been that the outlook is for lower net earnings for many corporations, which could threaten a dip in dividend rates.

Some think the profit drop will result from steadily rising operating costs. Others think sales may drop, paring earnings, or that falling sales and rising costs will coincide to a company's sorrow.

Defense cutbacks also have scared the market into brief tailspins.

The bulls have had some brief moments of glory, however. When Russia announced it had an intercontinental missile in operating shape, and when the London disarmament talks seemed headed for failure, resultant expectations of increased government spending here for defense led the bulls to bet that conditions in some defense industries would be reversed.

Some unreconstructed bulls believe that inflation always will be with us. They hold that prices will go right on rising chronically. And inflation is a bullish factor in the stock market.

The American character is bullish by nature. Most Americans feel that business should always be better, year after year, that industry must always expand, that incomes must always increase, and the standard of living always rise.

When things tend to drift, as they have this summer, it worries us. Actually the country generally enjoys exceptional prosperity. Since World War II the course of the economy has been upward almost steadily, with 1955-64 being desperately. All I've had to do is sit and think. If I hadn't had the children, I would have been in really bad shape."

Her son and her daughter have taken their father's loss well, she said; though young Stephen had a difficult adjustment to make at first. Betty (no one ever calls her Lauren) said she planned to put their Holmby Hills house up for sale as soon as she can find another place nearby. The house is too big and there are too many memories there.

Her own formula for the future is more work.

"I'd like to go right into another picture if I can find one," she said. "I think work is a good thing for me."

"If I don't go right to work, I'm going to get out of this town for a while. I'm going to make a habit of going to New York regularly; that's my home and I like the life there."

You have the theater in New York and lots of things to do. Hollywood is no place for a single woman."

DOROTHY DIX

Have Typing Will Travel

Dear Dorothy Dix: My life, I guess, has been that of an average girl in an average small city. I graduated from high school, got a job and now, at 21, am frankly bored. My social life is adequate but I have never had a particular friend, either male or female. My job is good by the standards of this locality, but has no promise; at least as far as I can see. My parents — wonderfully understanding souls, God love 'em — are willing for me to try my luck in New York or Chicago. Do you think my chances for social and business success would be better away from home?

PAULA

Dear Paula: As long as your scope is unlimited, why stop at New York or Chicago? Why not go on to Paris, Berlin, Alaska or the Argentine? A gal armed with intelligence, personality, energy and a business school education can work anywhere in the world — and have something to tell her grandchild. Inspired by your letter, I have collected some information on jobs abroad and put it in a leaflet entitled "Travel While You Work." It's yours for the asking — and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm giving you permission for it provided there were no long walks."

She doesn't want the guests to pair off and stray away from the rest of us. How can I tell the bunch that this is what I want?

BERNARDINE

Dear Bernardine: Keep the party moving at such a clip that the young people won't want to wander off. I thoroughly agree with your mother that "long walks" are undesirable, and guests who participate in them are extremely rude.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I suppose some girls would envy my position, but to me it's just confusing. I'm in love with a soldier who won't get married until he's out of service. I haven't much confidence in men and don't want to wait for him, although I love him. There's another boy in the picture who wants to marry me; he has a good job, but I don't love him. Third on the list is a very wealthy young man, but I don't love him either. Which one should I marry?

DARLENE

Dear Darlene: And some girls are lucky to get one proposal. Why, with all this musical ation, must you make up your mind now? Wait until one man comes along at the crucial moment when you know he's the right man!

ADELE

Dear Adele: Your friend doesn't need some folk more than they should have.

But even though the total of personal income is at a record high as the economy heads for fall, many a man feels that it is getting harder than ever to make both ends meet.

The cost of living is at a record, too. That's a hard fact in many lives. But one factor that some may have noted is that today's worker with his record high paycheck is supporting, directly or indirectly, a greater percentage of persons who aren't working than ever before.

Can Use Moon as

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Naval scientists reported today that the moon can be used as a radio relay station.

Radio messages as well as radar signals have been successfully transmitted to the moon and echoed back to earth through use of high frequency radar equipment, they said.

The results of six years of experiments were outlined by James H. Tressler and Benjamin S. Yarcho of the Naval Research Laboratory. They said this has since been confirmed.

Membership in Churches Show Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — America's church and synagogue membership rose to a record total of 103,224,954 in 1956 — slightly more than 3,000,000 over 1955 — the National Council of Churches reports. This figure indicates that 62 out of every 100 Americans of all ages are members of a church or synagogue.

A century ago, 20 of every 100 Americans were members of a church.

The 1956 increase is reported in the Yearbook of American Churches, published by the National Council of Churches and released yesterday. The council is a federation of major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Church bodies.

The figures are a compilation of official reports of religious bodies.

Among the statistics included in the publication were these:

The over-all figures from churches and synagogues showed an increase of 3 per cent for 1956, compared with an estimated population rise of 1.7 per cent.

1957 Belonged to Texas' Mr. Johnson

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year was Lyndon Johnson's year.

Last year was President Eisenhower's. Any or all of the next three may belong to Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowlton or some other prospective candidate for the presidency. But his year politically was Johnson's.

It was only 10 months ago that

Johnson was reelected by a landslide majority while his party was failing to regain control of Congress. But the 1957 record of Congress which closed up shop

last week bears Johnson's impression more clearly than it does

Eisenhower's.

Chicks Found Going Tough in Big Eight

Chicks Found Going Tough in Big Eight

By JOHN R. STARR

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 2 (UPI) — Blytheville realized a long ambition last year when its Chicks were accepted for membership in the Big Eight Conference. After the season was over, Blytheville probably wished it had never heard of the Big Eight.

The Chicks merely finished in last place in the Big Eight and won only one game the entire season. A disastrous year for any team, but particularly so for Blytheville which has been used to top drawer football for a decade and particularly in the last nine years under native son Russ Moses.

What's worse, Moses is not looking for any earth shaking improvement. Only 30 boys reported for football practice on Aug. 20 and only 24 remained after a week of head-knocking. Even a last place team can be hit heavily by graduation and the situation had been made more acute by Blytheville injuries which have cut down several key men, notably fullback James Privett, the player with the most experience and potential on the squad. Privett, counted on the carry the brunt of the Chicks' offense this fall, suffered a shoulder separation and may be lost six to eight weeks.

Moses had 12 lettermen when practice opened, but, as he puts it, "A letter doesn't mean you can play winning Big Eight ball."

Texan Regains His Oil Belt Title

EL DORADO, Ark. (UPI) — Jack Cupit of Groggton, Tex., successfully defended his title in the Oil Belt golf tournament here yesterday by defeating Jerry Breckenridge of Hot Springs, 4 and 3 on a soggy course.

Cupit shot 74 on Breckenridge's 6. Cupit was 72.

Rohr started on the first hole and was heavy during the fifth hole. Play was halted for nearly two hours at the seventh hole.

Cupit eliminated Richard Crawford of Springhill, La., in the semifinals. Breckenridge eliminated Dudley Taylor of Marshall, Tex.

Officers See Sex Films at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The supervisor of the police traffic division and about 20 other officers attended the showing of pornographic sex films at the home of a fellow officer last May, the police chief says.

The chief added that the films were provided by an announcer for a Memphis television station and were shown by a photographer for the station.

Chief J. C. Macdonald said Lt. B. L. Hitt voluntarily admitted the incident after reading newspaper accounts about James Bobo, administrative assistant to Mayor Edmund O'gill.

Bobo resigned Friday night shortly after a newspaper reporter learned Bobo had shown obscene films at Memphis parties. Bobo said he acquired the films while chief counsel for the Kefauver subcommittee on juvenile delinquency.

Hitt was suspended indefinitely after telling his chief Saturday night about the showing at his home following a fish fry.

Macdonald said an investigation showed Traffic Inspector Clifford Leggatende the movies. With the exception of one other lieutenant, the officers who saw the movies were patrolmen. Macdonald said.

The chief said the films were furnished by Tom York, an announcer for WMCT, and were shown by photographer Charles Cadwell.

York said the films were loaned to him by an out-of-state friend. He declined to name the friend or his state of residence.

The TV announcer added that he and Cadwell were invited to the fish fry "to eat fish" and not for the purpose of showing the movies.

"Everybody got started talking about sex films and I had some and we showed them," he said.

Hitt said none of the guests at the fish fry knew beforehand that the movies would be shown.

Bullets From Officer's Gun Wounds Two

NEW YORK (AP) — Stray bullets from a patrolman's gun, aimed at a suspected thief, struck two 5th Avenue strollers last night. Neither was seriously hurt.

Seconds later, the off-duty policeman and a foot patrolman captured the fugitive, who identified himself as Kenneth Brown, a Negro student of Washington, D.C.

He was not booked by police immediately.

Police gave this account:

Brown snatched the purse of Agnes Porter, a nurse, as she was being escorted home. The purse contained less than $20.

Wounded in the seven-block chase that followed were William Miller, 35, Babylon, N.Y., and Stanley Baldinger, also 35, Brooklyn.

Miss Porter's screams, as the purse was stolen, attracted the attention of a cab driver, Marvin Foshko. He gave chase, honking his horn in the pursuit.

The horn alerted Patrolman John Cuk, who was driving to work. He stopped his car and continued the chase on foot.

He fired one warning shot. The suspect hurried the purse at him and dashed north. Three more shots were fired.

Patrolman Louis Papa joined the chase at 35th Street and helped capture Brown a block away.

Brown was quoted as saying he came here to reconcile with his wife and that he needed money for his return trip to Washington.

150 Reportedly Killed in Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — An excursion train carrying 600 Roman Catholics home from a beach outing was derailed Sunday night and railway authorities said 150 persons were killed.

Authorities said more than 400 were injured.

Hospitals in Kingston were filled to overflowing.

A call went out to all doctors and nurses in Jamaica for help. The accident occurred about 11 p.m. near the village of Kendal, 60 miles west of Kingston, near the center of the island.

The train was derailed on a grade. The cause was not known immediately.

Blast Sends Man Through Door

LOS ANGELES — "I saw him come flying through the side door — all doubled up in a ball and wrapped in flame."

That was the way a neighbor described Samuel Green's violent exit from his home yesterday when it was wrecked by a gas explosion.

Green, 38, was pitched right through a closed door and 15 feet out into a driveway. He was reported in serious condition at a hospital with burns on 65 per cent of his body.

The blast blew out every window in the house, ballooned the plaster walls and punched a hole

Importance of Pines Discussed

Soviet Joins China in Lashing Dulles

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today joined the propaganda battle over the admission of American correspondents to Communist China with an attack on U.S. Secretary of State Dulles.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, accused the American secretary of speaking to Peiping "in the manner he is accustomed to use with Chiang Kai-shek."

"Dulles' reaction to 'anything with a Red color is well known,' the party organ said, adding the whole world recognizes Dulles' hostile and bitter attitude toward China."

The American secretary, Pravda continued, gave permission for a "selected" group of American journalists to go to China "but the State Department retains control and direction of their activity."

The Red paper said Peiping's refusal to admit the newsmen without reciprocal admission of Red Chinese correspondents to America was a just position.

Ex-Ark-La Official Dies in Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Oscar Jra. Moore, who once managed the Magnolia Ark, district of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., died in a hospital here yesterday at 73.

Moore was a PST district governor of Rotary International in Arkansas and past director of the Crippled Children's Hospital at Little Rock. He retired from the gas company post.

Funeral services were scheduled here at 4 p.m. today.

Busy Day for Police Chief

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Police Chief Frank Littlejohn had a busy day yesterday.

First, he attended a meeting conducted by segregationist John Kasperson and chased him off the courthouse lawn.

Then he went over to a movie and eager, searching quality of the young.

"What a stunning suit!" She stroked the tweed of Sarah's sleeve.

"It's old," Sarah said absently, and asked about Grant Melville. Carlotta poured more coffee and sat down on a stool. She looked solemn. "He's dead, you know: He fell from a window in his house in New York and was killed instantly, three or four weeks ago. We were horribly shocked when we heard. He was up here painting part of the summer." He had been coming up to North Cornwall for years, he had a shack up in the hills, and then he married again but his wife didn't like roughing it and didn't like Cornwall, so they hadn't seen as much of him in recent years as they used to.

Presently they went over to the stone house and Sarah ran the car into the driveway and closed the gate. The ailanthus trees and the locusts were leafless but the lawns were brilliantly green.

They went in by way of the kitchen. The fireplace and the beamed ceiling and the big black iron stove contrasted amusingly with the modern equipment, the white refrigerator, new sink counters and cabinets Grace had had installed.

Sarah carried her bag through the living room and on into the bedroom that opened out of it at the front of the house. The old cherry-wood desk gleamed rudely in a corner; fat low chairs sat on either side of the hearth, the narrow bed was covered with a white candlewick; pictures, books, lamps — there had been nobody there since last summer, everything was just as she had left it.

No, it isn't, Sarah thought absently. There was something missing, some familiar object. She couldn't discover what it was. Back in the living room she had the same random impression of change. Weren't two or three chairs out of position?

Carlotta came in cheerfully from the kitchen.

A thunderous crash cut across her words.

Climber Dies in Fall on Mt. Rainier

LONGMIRE, Mt. Rainier National Park, Wash. (AP) — The body of William Haupert, 20, of Bethlehem, Pa., will be brought down towering Mt. Rainier today.

Haupert died late yesterday of injuries received in a fall in a crevasse near the summit of the ice-topped, 14,410-foot mountain.

He was one of a party of 12 climbing to the summit by way of Ingraham Glacier. The party was going on a regular trail at the 13,000-foot level when the snow gave way without warning beneath Haupert and his guide Gary Rose, assistant chief summit guide.

Rose was not injured in the early morning fall, but Haupert was badly hurt. It was believed his back was broken. He was almost completely buried in the snow, about 10 feet below the lower edge of the crevasse and 25 feet below the upper ledge.

Half an hour after the accident Haupert was brought out of the crevasse. Rose led the other members of the party back to the 10,000-foot level, where they had camped Saturday night. Dr. J. H. Leheim of Seattle, who was in the same party, stayed with Haupert and administered first aid.

Rose returned to the scene while one of the other guides, Doc Moran of Seattle, radioed news of the accident to park headquarters at Longmire.

Haupert died some nine hours after the cave-in. A rescue party of 10 men brought his body down.

The party was the first official climbing party of the season.

Rahman was proclaimed "King and ruler of the federation of Malaya" with the title and style of Malaya with the title and style of His Majesty the Yang Di Peruan Agong (paramount ruler). The new king is a 63-year-old bilingual lawyer who served as a civil magistrate 27 years ago. In 1938 he was proclaimed ruler of Negri Sembilan, one of the nine Malay states that joined with the settlements of Penang and Malacca to form the federation which became an independent member of the British Commonwealth at midnight Friday.

Rulers of the states elected Sir Abdul for a five-year term as the $60,000-a-year constitutional monarch. The government will actually be run by Prince Abdul Rahman, the new prime minister and foreign minister who is no relation to the king.

An audience of 700 persons watched the installation ceremony in a temporary royal courtroom of the King's state palace. The room was lined with 40 bearers holding golden colored umbrellas to signify the installation was in progress.

Resplendent in gold and silver-threaded robes, Sir Abdul — who suffered a stroke two years ago — rose slowly from the golden-colored throne after the grand chancelor read the installation proclamation.

Stassen Back to Conference in London

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold Stassen was reported still cautiously optimistic today as he held last round talks here before flying back to the floundering disarmament conference in London.

He called on Secretary of State Dulles, at Dulles' home, presumably to settle last details of U.S. strategy as the arms problem shifts from the London subcommittee to the United Nations General Assembly.

The London talks resume Tuesday with Russia and the Western powers at loggerheads over steps to reduce the atomic threat and ease the arms burden.

The assessment of Stassen's views came from Humphrey.

"Mr. Stassen was cautiously optimistic in this sense: The Soviets have not openly withdrawn their own proposals which included developments to the good from their position of years past; and they have not as yet formally rejected the West's proposals," Humphrey said.

"Mr. Stassen feels, as I gathered it, that you need a considerable amount of patience in dealing with the Russians, and should not immediately jump to conclusions if they react to rossals in a foreign manner."

"You have to wait and see what the official's view is."

Humphrey said his own view is that the Russians "are not going to close the door but move for a change of scenery."

He said he expects a major propaganda drive by the Reds when the talks move into the U.N. General Assembly.

Humphrey said he urged in his talks with Stassen that the United States be prepared to meet any such development head-on.

Neither Stassen nor Secretary Dulles had anything to say about their conference as Stassen arrived at the Secretary's home about 11 a.m. (EDT).
